THE DRUG PROBLEM

Drug addiction is very common in this country, and constitutes a menace to the nation, according to an article in the Public Health Reports for March 10, of this year, which reviews the efforts made to lessen the abuse of habit forming drugs and analyzes the Federal and State laws restricting or regulating the distribution and use of opium, cocaine and other narcotics and habit forming drugs.

The abuse of narcotic drugs involves economic, social, moral and public health questions that collectively constitute one of the most serious problems before the people of the United States today.

In New York and several other states, drug addiction is regarded as a disease, and these states have provided a systematic treatment for those addicted to the use of drugs, while in Michigan such a person may be adjudged incompetent and a guardian appointed. A law recently enacted in Tennessee permits the sale of narcotics to drug addicts registered according to the law. Similar laws exist in other states, but the New York law for treatment of drug addicts is considered the better measure.

The principal shortcomings of the present laws are that no method of enforcement is outlined and no specific appropriations are made for their enforcement.

In order to bring about a uniformity in the enactment and enforcement of anti-narcotic laws, those who are interested in the subject should make a careful comparative study of the existing laws to determine the reasons for the inadequacy of these laws. Statistics should be compiled showing the nature and extent of the use of habit forming drugs, and earnest efforts should be made to secure uniform legislation that will prevent the misuse of such drugs.

The solution of the drug problem will be well worth the time, thought and expense required, and all who are interested in the welfare of the American people should give their support to the new federal anti-narcotic law which aims to reduce the number of drug addicts and to remove the temptation from others.

GOVERNOR'S PAROLE POWER

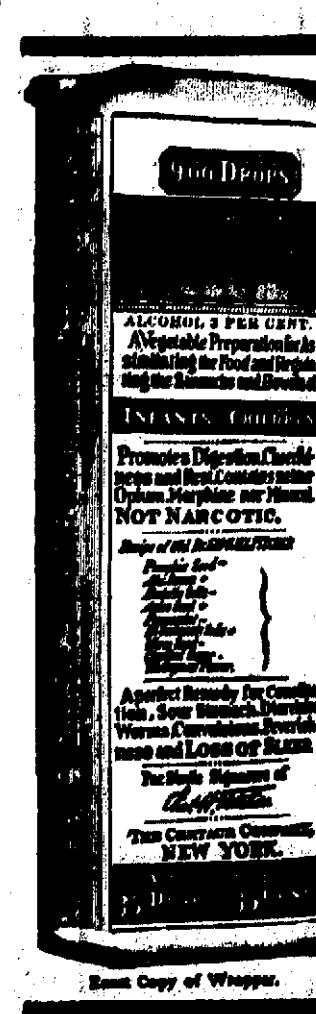

Mobile Register.

A pardoning board should be created to which all applications for pardon, parole or commutation shall be referred. Alabama is supposed to have such a board at present, but in reality it has not, for it is entirely discretionary with the governor as to whether he will consult said board or not. In other words, the way the matter stands at present is, the governor has absolute and undisputed authority to pardon, parole or commute the sentence of any person who has been convicted in Alabama—no matter what the crime or the circumstances of its commission, or how often or many juries have pronounced the person guilty, says the Greenboro Watchman.

It may be wise to give the pardoning board more than advisory powers. The Watchman appears mistaken, however, as to the amount of discretion allowed the governor in the matter of consulting the board, for the constitution says that "all recommendations, or petitions, for pardon, commutation or parole in cases of felony" shall be laid before the board and shall be heard in open session, and opinion thereon shall be given by the board in meeting. In other words, the governor must consult the board in all cases.

Governors have been accustomed to be guided by the board's opinion, although they have the privilege of disregarding it.

A DREAM WE ALL DREAM

Albany (Ga.) Herald.

A little home in the country, just a simple farm house; the garden and the cow and horse lot near by, the field a little further away; the pig-pen and the hen-house near; a sensible little woman caring for the babies, keeping the house, the kitchen, the chickens and partly the pigs and the garden; a man of muscle and sense lifting the heavier loads about the house, the lot, the garden, and taking care of the field work. That simple home is where men and women are raised and where contentment dwells.—West Alabama Breeze.

Ah, yes. And Ah! And Ah! And Ah!

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said 'I long to own a bit of ground and dig and dig, the whole year round?'"

If there is such a man we have never discovered him. Just let some lucky fellow, standing in the midst of a group of a dozen or twenty friends or chance acquaintances, say something about "the little place I bought, just out of town," and add a few details about the pigs, the chickens and the turkeys, the eggs, the butter, and the big pails of creamy milk, the luxurious truck, the peaches, figs and strawberries, and all those other delightful things the mind of man conjures up when "nice little places, just out of town" are mentioned, and a wistful look will come into the eyes of every man who listens.

Every city dweller wants a little country place, or thinks he does. He may never have lived on a farm, and may know nothing whatever about gardening, horticulture, cows, pigs or chickens. But he has a yearning for a closer contact with the soil. He longs to dig in the ground, and get the smell of freshly turned earth in his nostrils. He wants to plant something, he wants to feed chickens and throw corn to the pigs, hunt for eggs and milk a cow.

A great many men, sooner or later in life, get the little place out in the country, install the fowls and the animals, buy the seed and garden tools, plant the trees and "really begin to live."

A few—maybe one in ten—stick it out and derive that keen satisfaction to which they so long looked forward. The other nine stay till the animals die, the chickens quit laying or wander away, the garden goes to ruin and the fruit trees get the scale or the blight. Then they sell out, or let the sheriff do it, and move back to town. But they are never satisfied for they still believe it was not really their fault that things failed to pan out on the first country life experiment.

It is not true that farmers, like poets, are born and not made. A city boy can be made into as good a farmer as the boy born on a farm, but he must love his work, respect his calling, and bring to bear on the problems of the farm as much intelligent application as he would give to his store, his office or his factory. No business will run itself, and less of all a farm.

But every man, whether he has tried it or not, still wants, and will continue to want, "a little place out in the country" where he fondly imagines the true joy of living is to be found.

A CONFESSION

Repeat Her Statement, Bold Public, will Help Other Women.

"Honest, Al—'I must confess', says Mrs. Edna Mae Ross, of this place, 'that Cardel, the woman's best, has done me a great deal of good.'"

Before I commenced using Cardel I would spit up everything I ate. I had a hard, sleepless night, and was irritable. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches constantly.

Since taking Cardel, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight."

GRADY ON DIVERSIFICATION

Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

Years ago the gifted, eloquent Henry W. Grady, whose memory Georgians and Southerners revere, had occasion to write upon the subject of diversification. He believed in it and advocated it. He could see, in his mind's eye, the dawning of a new day for our people if they would diversify, and he told them so in eloquent language.

The great conflict now raging across the wide Atlantic has disturbed business conditions in this country. There may be no real reason why it should have done so; in fact, when one gives the matter sober thought he wonders why it has done so; but it has. It is a condition, not a theory. Business conditions have been disturbed; although now there appears to be a strong tendency toward a return to what they were before hostilities began in Europe.

The disturbed conditions in this country have caused the people of the South to realize as they have not done before the great importance of diversifying their crops. They have seen that it is necessary for them to do so in order to be a free and independent people, such as they are entitled to be and such as their country will make if they will only take advantage of their opportunities that are presented to them.

In view of the agitation and discussion in favor of the diversification of crops the words of the lamented Grady, although they were written many years ago are as true today as they were when they were written, and they are as true then as any that more men have ever written. Here is what he said:

What he said:

"When every Southern farmer shall eat bread from his own fields, shall sit amidst his teeming gardens, orchards, dairies and barn yards, pitching his crops in his own wisdom, and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus, selling it in his own time—in his chosen market—and not at a master's bidding—getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that charges his debt but does not restore his freedom—then shall he be breaking the fullness of our day."

When the Southern farmer shall do these things indeed, "shall be breaking the fullness of our day," and long ago that day should have dawned. But it has not been because our people have entertained the erroneous idea that they could grow cotton and sell it at a price sufficient to supply them with all other products they should have grown on their farms.

That this was an erroneous idea has been proven beyond question in the experience of a very large percentage of our farmers. For, where one man has succeeded by following this course, many have failed, utterly failed.

Hence, today, with the nations of Europe warring one against the other, we find the prices of cotton lower than the cost of production, and the barns and the smokehouses of the Southern farmers are empty.

500 Employees Who Were Glad When the Box Took up Baseball.

In the April American Magazine Ida M. Tarbell writes another article in her new business column, "The Golden Rule in Business." This month's article has to do with the length of the working day and many interesting points and stories are brought out showing that the old-time long working day was of no practical advantage. Miss Tarbell tells the story of a certain factory in the central part of the United States where five hundred girls are employed in making cotton articles. There was a great deal of friendliness between the employees and the owner. The owner was called "Pete" and he discussed shop matters with his employees on terms of entire equality and mutual interest. Miss Tarbell's story goes on:

"For years Pete's day was that of the operatives from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., ten hours and no Saturday half holiday. Then he became interested in baseball, and bought an automobile. But when you work from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., there is scant time for either games or driving. Pete tried to bring himself boldly to going off Saturday afternoons, and to leaving early when the notion took him. He couldn't do it and he was in his mind! Moreover, if he did it he heard of it. 'Fine to be the boss, ain't it?' some operative who had begun at the beginning and shared ups and downs with steadfast pluck and sympathy would call when she next saw him.

"Finally Pete announced there was to be a half holiday Saturday. They were to make up for it in part. By coming at 6:30 they could get in three hours, and the thought the business could stand a cut of two hours. So they started that week; but the girls didn't like the earlier hours and were very often late. Pete didn't complain, he did not like 6:30 himself; and in six months time, without any discussion of the matter, everybody was coming in at 7 a. m., and everybody had his Saturday half-holiday, which they will continue to have, as the law has recently sanctioned 55 hours in that state.

I asked the forewoman who told me the tale, a loyal and humorous person, 'How about the output? Did it fall off?' 'That's the queer

THE LAST LAUGH.

An article under the above caption has been going the rounds of the press. It assails William Allen White's story, "What's the Matter With Kansas?" published some time since in the Saturday Evening Post.
"Mr. White," it said, "boasted about the big crops of Kansas, the per capita wealth of Kansas, the number of automobiles in Kansas, and almost succeeded in making everyone believe that Kansas was wholly rich as well as richly holy. But he overdid it.
And his home town, Emporia, is the goal. For years the College of Emporia has been largely supported by means of donations from wealthy Easterners, who imagined they were supporting a poor little college on the wind-swept prairies." When these rich patrons read Mr. White's clever but misleading article they withdrew their subscriptions. This year the college must look to home for the annual donation of $200,000, which used to come out of the East."

The National W. C. T. U. Bureau of Publicity forwarded the article to Mr.
White and in reply he says:

"I have received, I should say, a dozen or fifteen clippings from all over the United States exactly like the one you sent. The clippings were sent out by the liquor interests through the National Clipping Bureau, and there is no truth whatever in the statement. It is pure fiction."

Mr. White sends also the following statement written for the public by the president of the college:

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
"I have learned that certain selfish interests are circulating a story that the College of Emporia has lost donations and subscriptions in the East.
See to it that in the Saturday Evening Post on the prohibition situation in Kansas, written by William Allen White. I wish to say there is absolutely no foundation for this story."

"Very truly yours,
"HENRY COE CULBERTSON,
"President College of Emporia."

Is a personal letter to Mr. White, a copy of which is also in the hands of the W. C. T. U. Publicity Bureau.
Mr. Culbertson deals with the college financial affairs in detail. We quote:

"The article to which you call my attention is utterly absurd. Neither the College of Emporia nor Washburn college ever received an annual donation of $200,000 from the East. So far as I am concerned, during the entire thirty-two years' existence of the College of Emporia, this institution has not received as much as $20,000 in all, for all purposes, buildings, equipment and various expenses, from persons living outside the state. This is an average of about two thousand dollars per year. Almost all of our endowment, and the money to erect our buildings, as well as the money to meet our current expenses budget of $40,000 per year, has come from the gifts of the people in this prohibition state of Kansas."

Even if it cost an $200,000 or any other amount in pounds, give, for money, officers and trustees would not believe most emphatically the prohibition policy, which we believe saves the state and could not be of any other kind."

And if it cost an $200,000 or any other amount in pounds, give, for
money, officers and trustees would
prohibition policy, which we believe
be of any other kind."

TEMPERANCE NOTES

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

BALCONY THE PAUPERMAKER.

"One out of every ten people a pauper! This statement is made concerning Cook county, Illinois, of which county the city of Chicago constitutes the chief part, and is given in the annual report of the president of the board of county commissioners.
During last year the number helped was 150,000, the chief cause of need in 2,000 of these cases being reported as unemployment. The close connection between the 1,000 saloons of Chicago and the burden of pauperism is easily seen. Any business man sufficiently employed labor could make a tolerably accurate conjecture that fully two-thirds of the men who cannot in ordinary times secure employment are unreliable and undesirable as workmen because of their indulgence in liquor."

And the men and women who each year dig deep into their pockets for the taxes necessary to care for these 250,000 paupers and other dependent citizens, are in a majority of cases the same men and women who license the institution that produces them!

MENACE TO THE BOY.

(From the speech of Congressman Garrett of Texas, in behalf of the Hobson resolution.)

"I am not afraid of the blind tiger for my boy or myself, but of the tiger that can see—the tiger that stands on every prominent corner with bright lights that blink at me. Young men do not begin the drink habit in the blind tigers. They learn to drink at mahogany tables in the high class beer gardens and restaurants, where they serve nice little drinks with fruit attaching around them. When you took our slaves away from us we suffered, but we thank you for it today. We thought we had a right to decide that question for ourselves, but you said we could not. Now when we want to destroy the saloon curse, you will tell 'states rights' at us."

JUNIORS DRY UP THE TOWN.

In Georgetown, O., a few weeks before election, young men of from fifteen to twenty years of age organized a Junior Business Men's club and announced themselves as a "bunch of winners." They made a thorough canvass of the town and solicited every voter, saying to the drinking classes, "You wanted saloons in your day; you've had them; we boys don't want them in our midst; won't you help give us what we want?" The result was that Georgetown went "dry" three to one. This campaign has attracted much attention in the state and the "wet" feel they have nothing to hope from the new generation about to step into the electorate.

LIFE-CONSERVER.

An exhaustive investigation into 2,400,000 lives insured during the last 24 years was recently completed by the Life Insurance companies. Arthur Hunter, a New York attorney, reporting some of these findings to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents in New York city, said they showed that "the loss of 600,000 men in the present war would be made good in less than ten years through complete abstinence from alcoholic beverages by the inhabitants of Russia."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

The following figures are given by a writer in economics: In 24 days there are (24 hours to the day) 5,760 hours. The church is open on an average of 600 hours a year, the schools about 1,200 hours, the average factory about 2,400 hours, and the average business concerns about 2,500 hours, while the saloon and other like resorts are open about 1,725 hours.

SAME OLD PROBLEM.

The problem that faces us today is the problem all ages have wrestled with, and the pen of history has yet to record its perfect solution, that of entering the individual to accept in his life the ideas and the laws that mark the trail of an advanced civilization.—

U. organizer.

GOOD JOB FOR BOYS.

At an Epworth league meeting recently a group of boys, each with a speck on his shoulder, stepped to the platform. Another boy got them and asked: "What are you going boys?" In answer and with unshakable courage they replied: "Going to buy the Power traffic," and then marched from the stage."

CONFESSION BY PROHIBITION.

And if it cost an $200,000 or any other amount in pounds, give, for money, officers and trustees would
prohibition policy, which we believe
be of any other kind."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Get Low Meat if You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidney in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels removing all the acids, waste, and poison, else you feel a dull achi-ness in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's uric acid waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases. 10

A REAL ONE

"Is he a good doctor?"
"Naw; he's a quack."

ROMANIA'S NEW KING.

King Ferdinand of Roumania, succeeding the late King Charles was in 1893 declared prince of Romania and heir apparent to the throne. Physically he has never been very robust, and the threat of tuberculosis has hung over him for years.
He is said to have little taste for soliding, his mind leaning rather toward science, and his education has been along this line. He is described as shy, reserved and unbending. He married the Princess Marie, daughter of the duke of Edinburgh, a brother of King Edward VII of England.

ceived by an English insurance com-

A Joyous Easter to You and Yours

Easter means much to us when we think of it seriously. The more seriously we think of this festival of the Christian Church, commemorating the resurrection of the Lowly Nazarene, the more joyous we become.

The very birds fly forth from their winter homes and chirp gladness; the flowers burst open their petals and spread perfumed happiness this Eastertide.

All vegetation proclaims new life. Its therefore fitting that woman don her Easter raiment on this happy occasion and look her best, for only can woman look her best when she has the consciousness of being well "groomed."

A GLAD EASTER TO YOU AND YOURS.
